BIOGRAPHY

Cameron is an attorney in Katz Korin Cunningham's litigation practice group. He focuses on defending hospitals, physicians and other health care providers in professional liability matters. Cameron also provides legal counsel to clients in commercial litigation and risk management issues. Cameron graduated from the Indiana University Robert H. McKinney school of law in 2014 with a certificate in health law.

Throughout college and law school Cameron was employed by St. Vincent Health as a Patient Access Representative where he became familiar with electronic medical records and the general health care workflow. Prior to joining Katz Korin Cunningham, Cameron served as a Marion County Deputy Prosecuting Attorney for four years where he gained extensive litigation experience trying dozens of cases to verdict as both first and second chair.
